- Hospital Universitário do Oeste do Paraná (HUOP):

21/38

1) Locating and presenting Unioeste

- Rectory:

22/38

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- Universities are places of creation and transmission of knowledge, awareness and innovation. They are the driving of the social, economic and cultural life of a society.
- The universities are the ones that provide the emancipation of the human being, forming critical citizens to act in the society.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- The advent of globalization, strongly accelerated by the end of the Cold War, brings with it a large reconfiguration of the economies of the trading systems, research, innovation and communications. The impacts, motivations and purposes behind this phenomenon of global forces effectively affecting the local life, which in turn dramatically expands the need for internationalization, in its most comprehensive manner within the higher education institutions around the globe.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- This happens in the sense that scientific and technological development is closely linked to institutional participation in this new world logic through its inseparable functions of teaching, research and outreach.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- The development of a global higher education system is the recognition that a major paradigm shift is taking place, where higher education institutions are not only a strategic 'resource' for local development, regional, state or national, but a 'resource' connected to world order with all its disparities and asymmetries.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- Analyzing the mission of universities to prepare citizens for an interconnected and interdependent world, there is a need for a different educational experience.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

- In this sense, internationalization has become an imperative in higher education institutions in its most comprehensive form, because it provides the students the opportunity to expand their "world of life" in the practical sense, with the exchange of knowledge, culture and practices, both within the walls of the universities, as well as providing unique experiences abroad.

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

The concept of internationalization: The internationalization of higher education institutions, conceptually speaking, deals with the process of integrating an international / intercultural dimension to the core activities of universities, namely teaching, research and extension (Knight, 2003)

29/38

2) Conceptualizing Internationalization

INTERNATIONALIZATION AS A MULTIDIMENSIONAL CONCEPT:

- a) Internationalization abroad : all forms of cross-border education, mobility of students, teachers, researchers, programs, courses, curricula, projects, etc ...
- b) Internationalization at home: activities that assist in the development of international understanding and international and intercultural skills.

PERVADE EDUCATION, RESEARCH, OUTREACH AND ALL OTHER SUPPORT UNITS

30/38

3) Internationalization at Unioeste

Maximization of the interinstitutional and international cooperation

- The International Office/ARI starting on the premise of learning by doing is establishing the bases for an institutionalized strategy towards the maximization of its organizational interests, regardless of the management, on interinstitutional and international cooperation

3) Internationalization at Unioeste

- Strategies to maximize Unioeste's Interinstitutional and International relations:

International Office/ARI's commitment is maximizing utility on Unioeste International and interinstitutional relations:

- By stimulating interinstitutional and international cooperation through networks and other associative means among university's different levels;
- coordinating with the different levels and units to promote a multicultural environment at the university as a whole
- developing research and outreach projects intended towards the improvement of internationalization practices of the institution abroad and at home;
- promoting the academic mobility of students, faculty and university staff;

32/38

3) Internationalization at Unioeste

- hosting international visitors and socializing events organized between different courses, programs and campuses;
- disclosing the institution abroad in order to recruit academics and researchers, enhancing the institutional reputation;
- divulging the university through its official informative Western Paraná Herald and Heraldo Oeste Paranaense;
- instigating the realization of outreach and education courses in foreign languages;
- consolidating and promoting the institutionalization, in a decentralized manner, of the specialized services and routines related to inter-institutional and international relations on the various units;

3) Internationalization at Unioeste

- The International Office aims towards strengthening the cooperation of the university as a whole. Unioeste has a specialized department, which is engaged in the maximization of the interinstitutional cooperation at all levels, throughout the undergraduate programs, graduate programs, research, innovation and outreach. Its purpose is to create a multicultural environment on our campuses on the one hand, with the world's best universities in North America and Europe, and on the other, consolidating its positing as a reference institution in Latin America.

4) Internationalization through outreach

- The outreach projects developed by the International Office of the institution are based in two axis:
  - a) Strategic communication
  - b) Methodology and strategies of teaching / learning

35/38

4) Internationalization through outreach

- a) Strategic communication:
To establish a communication linkage between the entire international academic community

36/38

4) Internationalization through outreach

b) Methodology and strategies of teaching / learning:

We are promoting the following outreach project: Internationalization at home - COIL (Collaborative Online International Learning) to raise awareness about the advantages of international collaboration as a tool for virtual mobility in international education among the academic community of Unioeste.
